Following is another response from Ruilin Ren:

I do not know why the stratification variable was not coded in the final data. However, if your aim is just for statistical analysis, and not intended to compare the difference between the urban categories (meaning you do not need to identify the stratum for restricted analysis), then using V024 crossed with V025 as stratification will be good enough, although it is not the exact stratification. Actually, the two different categories of the urban areas do not differ much in the Congo DR settings.
