I am studying the effect of expansion in education on domestic violence. I am using both the female and the male datasets to study the effect of free primary education policy on educational outcomes and now I want to study the effect of increased education (in both men an women) on domestic violence. Since I need to match men and women in order to use each couple as a unit of analysis, I was wondering if data on domestic violence are available also in the couples' dataset in order to avoid the matching between the individual datasets.
