Another response from Tom Pullum:

There are three possible singleunit options: centered, scaled, and certainty. I have compared them and the differences are negligible (so far as I am concerned). If you do not include singleunit, with one of the options, there is a good chance that your run will simply stop because it does not have enough variation within one of the strata. As for the way you set up the model, I cannot offer much assistance. Perhaps other forum users will help.
