We will release DHS data for men through IPUMS DHS by the end of May.

IPUMS DHS is created by a small research team with funding from the National Institutes of Health, and we are adding more samples and countries three times a year, as quickly as we can. I expect that all currently available public African standard DHS samples will be released through IPUMS DHS by early 2020. We are working on Chad data now. We are currently funded to harmonize standard DHS samples from Africa, the Middle East, and South Asia, and we will soon apply for additional funding to cover more regions of the world.

If the country or countries you need are not currently available, check back again.
