

---

Subject: Re: Still births-infant mortality

Posted by Bridgette-DHS on Thu, 04 Mar 2021 19:53:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Following is a response from DHS Research & Data Analysis Director, Tom Pullum:

You can definitely proceed with logit (=logistic) regression. That's what I would recommend. You can include intervening and control variables. Path analysis is really a procedure to partition correlations among continuous variables into total, direct, and indirect components using linear regression. I don't believe the logic extends to logit regression. Have you found examples of path analysis with logit regressions?

---