
Subject: Re: Using chi-square or Fisher's exact test for differences between groups
Posted by Shireen-DHS on Tue, 07 Sep 2021 13:03:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hello,

In general, we do not usually answer statistics question on this forum but questions on DHS data and calculations of DHS indicators. However, the chi-square test should work. I am confused why 18240 is too small. From your question I thought you were trying to compare vaccination between the two surveys so why not use the t-test to test the difference between two proportions?

Thank you.

Best,

Shireen Assaf

The DHS Program
