Following is a response from DHS staff member Tom Pullum:

We apologize for the delay with this response. The computer code that actually produced the tables in the NFHS-5 report was written in CSPro, not Stata. We could share that code, but it is difficult to read and (more important) the hierarchical data file that the code was written for is not available. We do not have already-prepared Stata programs written specifically for this survey.

I think the best approach will be to find why the standard GitHub code is not working for you. Please describe what happens when you try to run it. We will then try to diagnose the issue quickly.
