Following is a response from Senior DHS staff member, Tom Pullum:

I think it would be appropriate to have a section in which the mothers are the units, and another section in which the children are the units. For some topics, such as this one, both perspectives are valid. So, even if the analysis mainly uses the KR / BR files, some description using the IR file, with mothers as the units, and describing their education and employment and fertility, say, could be useful. You just need to be clear for the reader. Good luck with this topic!
