

---

Subject: Re: Indonesian smoking status

Posted by user-rhs on Wed, 03 Jun 2015 19:40:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Nando,

Have you tried looking at the Indonesia Family Life Survey? Here's the link to the website:

<http://www.rand.org/labor/FLS/IFLS/ifls4.html> IFLS collects information on tobacco use (see buku IIIb) and pregnancy hx (buku IV). One drawback of IFLS data is that they are not as clean and ready to use as DHS data. There is a lot of data management to be done before you can get a working dataset (you may need to go back to earlier datasets for complete birth hx), but the data are quite rich. A colleague told me that IFLS5, being collected now, should be released sometime next year. The most recent wave was from 2007. IFLS East, collected on Eastern Indonesia in 2012, is now available via the Survey Meter website (link:

<http://surveymeter.org/research/3/the-indonesia-family-life-survey-east-ifls-east>)

HTH,

RHS

---