Just posting here that the PMI MIP team met with the MCH and HIV teams and reviewed the series of questions on Antenatal care, which contains questions on IPTp. We provided a number of very specific comments - however, I input those questions in the Maternal Health section of this review portal and cross-posted them on the HIV section where appropriate. I am attaching the file with the full set of comments here in case folks are interested. I didn't want the DHS Mgmt team to think the Malaria team wasn't reviewing things - we are! But our comments are posted in the sections of the questionnaire where the relevant malaria questions are asked!

Greetings Erin,

We certainly appreciate your thoroughness. The DHS has classified the questions pertaining to malaria prevention during pregnancy (and all malaria related questions) under "Infectious Diseases", so we have moved posts about IPTp to the "Infectious Diseases" folder to follow the Guidelines established for the portal.

How DHS has classified existing questions is defined in the "Existing questions organized by category" document located in the READ ME folder (to guide folks to the appropriate folder for their post). Each topic folder also contains a document that lists which questions are included in that folder - specifically because we realize some sections of the questionnaire cut across more than one topic, and numerous questions cut across several areas of interest.

Best regards,
