Is there a particular variable that specifies the number of women who were ever married or ever had been in an intimate relationship with men, to understand how many women were administered 'intimate partner violence' questions, from the total number of women selected and interviewed for 'Domestic Violence' module?

Thanks

Following is a response from DHS Research & Data Analysis Director, Tom Pullum:

Please look at the questionnaire and the introduction to the chapter on the DV module in the final report. The final reports are online. The questionnaires are in an appendix. They will tell you about eligibility for the module and specific questions. Also, in many surveys, eligibility depends on whether the household is in a subsample of households.
